COURT ACTION ON CITY HALL SITE DELAYED

Easter Worshipers To Overflow Salem Churches Sunday

Three words, "Christ Is Risen!" spoken by an angel more than 1900 years ago to the women who came early to His tomb, makes Easter the most joyous of festivals observed by men.

And nature, too, joins in the celebration in re-acting the wonder and glory of the resurrection by releasing new life to budding trees, green grass and spring flowers.

Record throngs are expected to attend the Easter services in Salem churches Sunday when the story of the resurrection will be re-told in sermon and song.

Sunrise Services
Easter dawn will find groups of people from eight churches gathered for a sunrise prayer meeting.

The first one is set for 6:30 a. m. in Holy Trinity Lutheran church and will be conducted by the young people. A sacred drama, "The Light of The Cross," will be featured. Two meditations will be given. "The Meaning of Easter" by Allen Fehr and "Proofs of the Resurrection" by William Hiltbrand.

Members and friends of the Emmanuel Lutheran church will celebrate a service at 7 a. m.

The pastor, Rev. John Bauman, will preach on the subject, "Christ's Easter Triumph: I Live." The Girls choir will sing an Easter anthem.

Holy Communion will be celebrated after the festival service.

Four youth fellowships—Baptist, Christian, Methodist and Presbyterian, have arranged a union Sunrise prayer service at 7 a. m. in the Christian church.

Three sermonettes are scheduled on the program. Lucy Huston will speak on "The Meaning of the Cross." "The Crucifixion" will be Jeannett Mattix's theme, while Donald Maxson will use "Easter" for his subject.

Other numbers are:
Organ prelude, Mrs. Ruth Berry; vocal solo, Patricia Keyes; call to worship, Treva Bush; Scripture reading, Robert Campbell; vocal solo, Donna Lou Getz; anthem, "Chimes of Easter" by a mixed choir; prayer, Robert Coffee; benediction, William Weber. Easter hymns will intersperse the program.

Philip Hunter, George Huston, David Messersmith and Lee Ward will usher.

Nettie House is chairman for the breakfast, which will follow the service.

This service and breakfast is open to anyone interested.

Young people of the Nazarene church will hold their Sunrise service at 7 a. m.

Meet At Damascus
A delegation from the First Friends Christian Endeavor society will attend the Sunrise service at 7 a. m. in Quaker canyon, Damascus. This is sponsored by the Damascus Quarterly meeting. Christian Endeavor union of which Clarence Townsend of Salem is president.

Easter baskets will be given to the boys and girls attending the Salvation Army Sunday school at 2 p. m. in the temple.

Brig. David Coy of Cleveland, divisional secretary for the North-east Ohio division, will speak at 8 p. m. Sunday. Mrs. John Hansen, wife of Capt. Hansen, will preach at the worship hour at 11 a. m.

The Baptists will hold their Easter service in the Memorial building Sunday morning, with baptismal services in the evening at the Christian church.

Good Friday Rites Held
Holy week services closed with the Good Friday three-hour community meeting in the Church of Our Saviour (Episcopal) in charge of the rector, Rev. Harry Barrett, who is also president of the Salem Ministerial association, which sponsored the observance.

Several hundred people listened to meditations by Rev. Barrett, Rev. C. D. Keister, Rev. John Bauman, Rev. R. J. Hunter, Rev. G. C. Beebe, Rev. David E. Molyneux and Rev. E. S. Scott. The offering will be sent to churches in the Holy Land.

Approximately 300 attended the four noonday services in the State theater, which are considered successful for a new experiment. The money received from these will go to the Ministerial association for general expenses.

NATION JOINS FOR WORSHIP

Risen Christ To Be Extolled In Countless Easter Services

(By Associated Press)
Centuries-old prayer, pageantry and song will solemnize the Easter festival tomorrow as the nation's millions of Christian worshippers gather in hamlets, towns and cities to extol the story of the risen Christ.

As the first rays of the morning sun reach across the land, the throngs will come together in churches, stadia and picturesque outdoor settings where they will hear anew the message of the Cross of Calvary and the resurrection.

The third Easter since the ending of World War II, it will be marked traditionally with sunrise services at the amphitheater in the National cemetery at Arlington. There, a cross of white lilacs will be placed on the tomb of the Unknown Soldier.

Other early observances in the nation's capital will be held at service hospitals and at Fort Lincoln on the outskirts of the city where 75,000 persons are expected to gather at sunrise.

In Arizona, the 14th annual Grand Canyon Easter service will be held at the Shrine of Ages on the canyon's south rim.

Some 65,000 are expected at sunrise services in Chicago's Soldier field where a 100-foot white cross, spanned by the words, "Christ Is Risen," has been erected.

Numerous sunrise services are scheduled for New York City, including the 30th annual United Easter dawn observance sponsored by the city's Protestant council. In Manhattan, the Seamen's Church Institute will broadcast Easter music and a sermon to ships at sea. The program will be beamed by the State department's international broadcasting division.

The townspeople of Valley Stream N. Y., a community of 30,000 Long Islanders, will gather Easter Sunday night to hear United Nations speakers and pray en masse for peace.

Washington's cherry blossoms are blooming three weeks early this year, so the Capitol dome is all dressed up in a frame of floral finery for Easter.

Judge Joel H. Sharp set that day for a hearing on a motion to dispossess the records of the national pottery union filed by L. A. Finlay, S. W. Johnson and Clyde McDaniels, all of East Liverpool. Edward Jones of Sebring and Norman Whipple, of Chester, W. Va. All are pottery workers.

The motion was linked with an injunction action instituted against James M. Duffy, East Liverpool, president of the union, and Charles E. Jordan of Sebring, the brotherhood's treasurer.

Gov. Herbert Puts Finish On Liquor Control Outcry

(By Associated Press)
COLUMBUS, March 27—Gov. Thomas J. Herbert has written what looked today like the final chapter in the 1947 outcry about Ohio's liquor department.

In a news conference yesterday, Herbert:

(1) Patted State Liquor Director Dale Dunifon on the back for "an outstanding job," and,

(2) Sympathized with Attorney General Hugh S. Jenkins in his year-long investigation.

"I can well understand the difficulties of the attorney general in developing any more facts than he did," said the governor.

Attorney General Jenkins made public earlier yesterday a 17-page report to Governor Herbert on permit issuance and liquor buying in the closing weeks of former Gov. Frank J. Lausche's administration.

Jenkins said he was unable to obtain all the information he wished. His office, he explained, did not have the power needed to force such information from unwilling witnesses.

Recalls Old Days
Governor Herbert referred to the days when he was attorney general and was conducting an investigation at Youngstown.

"We had to work six months in Youngstown under cover before we ever called a grand jury," Herbert said.

"We made it a point never to hear anybody until we had the facts," he continued. "I assume the attorney general went on the same basis."

In lauding Dunifon's work as state liquor director, the governor observed that most of the recommendations made by Jenkins in his report already had been carried out.

Jenkins told the governor he could not produce sufficient evidence to present to a grand jury.

"We have stopped all leaks that were there before," he said, "both in purchases and permit granting. Administratively, we have overcome most of the evils existing there when we took office. We don't claim perfection. There will always be rumors."

"We have always tried to run down rumors until we came to a blind alley."

Remains Neutral
The governor remained neutral on the hottest part of Jenkins' report—that part in which the attorney general recommended Ohio getting out of the liquor business as an "obvious alternative" to unsatisfactory operations.

"I think," said Herbert, "that the monopoly system can be run cleanly and properly. I think it is being run cleanly and properly today."

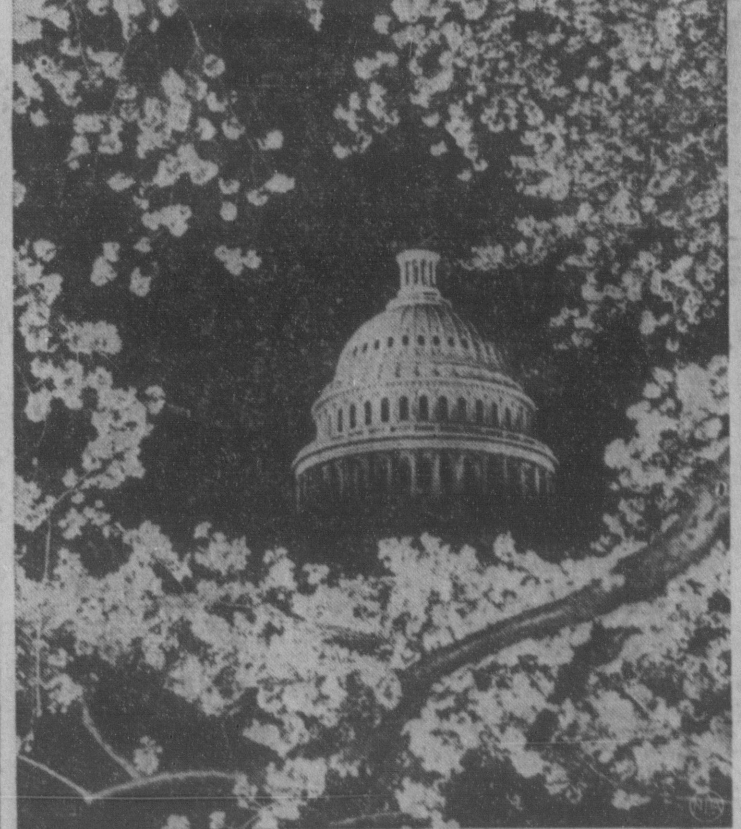

About abandoning the Ohio liquor monopoly, said the governor, he has no convictions.

Political observers, however, pointed out that Ohio dry forces will seize upon Jenkins' statement with glee. It has long been the goal of drys to force the state out of the liquor business as a prelude to drying up Ohio.

Governor Herbert said, however, that liquor buyers in Ohio had the edge on consumers in states where the state does not maintain a monopoly.

"Our system gives the consumer the best break today," the governor said.

LEWIS DELAYS PROBE TOWARD STRIKE HALT

Refuses To Appear At Hearings Friday: Says He's "Studying"

(By Associated Press)
WASHINGTON, March 27—John L. Lewis forced a 72-hour delay today in government efforts to bring the soft coal strike to a speedy end.

He brought President Truman's special inquiry board to a standstill by failing to appear at its first hearings yesterday.

The three fact finders finished hearing the coal operators' side of the miner pension dispute in less than two hours.

When the United Mine Workers' chief didn't show up, the board recessed until Monday. The bushy-browed Lewis was given until then to decide if he will appear voluntarily. Otherwise the board could force him to appear by getting a court order.

Lewis stayed away, he informed the board, to study "legal questions involved." But his absence threw a monkey-wrench into board plans to work steadily through the Easter weekend to speed a report to President Truman.

That report must be in Truman's hands before he can seek a court order to halt the walkout under terms of the Taft-Hartley act.

Meanwhile the strike, nearing the end of its second week, was paralyzing industry. Secretary of the Interior Krug appealed to the few coal mines still operating to dole their production only to essential consumers. And Krug asked everyone to help save coal.

He estimated that three more days of the strike will affect 18 percent of the electric power utilities, 25 percent of the steel and rolling mills, 27 percent of the major railroads and 72 percent of the retail coal yards.

Coal burning freight and passenger service already has been cut 23 percent to government order.

The dispute is over how to pay miner pensions out of a $32,000,000 welfare fund. The fund is financed by a 10-cent-a-ton coal royalty.

Lewis has proposed paying $100 monthly pensions to 60-year-old miners with 20 years' service; the operators say the fund won't support that and only miners employed under the present coal contract are legally entitled to any benefits.

$11,363 SECURED FOR RED CROSS
Salem's Red Cross fund drive crept steadily forward today as latest returns put the total subscribed at $11,363.45.

This was a gain of $1,900 during the past week, according to Campaign Chairman Harold D. Smith and Miss Hazel Linn, chapter secretary.

Both leaders expressed confidence that the Salem quota of $18,555 would be raised by the end of the month when the drive closes officially.

Bob Engle has been assisting Smith as co-chairman, while leaders in outlying districts include C. G. Long at Damascus, Harold McCrea at Winona and Glen Greenleaf and Price Cope in Perry township.

CIO'S MURRAY ON BLAST FURNACE CASE
BETHLEHEM, Pa., March 27—President Philip Murray of the CIO United Steelworkers called for a grand jury investigation as a fifth man died from burns suffered when flaming coke from a blast furnace showered workmen at the Bethlehem Steel Corp. plant.

The fifth victim of last Wednesday's accident, Frank Schlegel, Jr., 40, of Easton, Pa., died yesterday.

Murray said yesterday "criminal negligence" was responsible for the death of the five men and wired District Attorney Jacob A. Raub asking a grand jury investigation.

The company, in a statement and wire to Murray, said it was taking all possible steps to determine the cause of the accident.

A company spokesman said the work of shutting down the furnace preparatory to refining it was being carried on in accordance with standard procedure.

"Draft Ike" Movement On In Democratic Ranks Today

BY JACK BELL
WASHINGTON, March 27—Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower was being pushed today by anti-Truman Democrats who want him as the party's presidential candidate.

The general, who froze a GOP draft-like drive last January, is reported to have told friends in the last few days he is no more available for the Democratic nomination than he was for the Republican post.

But this may not be enough to head off a new movement that had all the signs of an organized drive.

If it isn't, Eisenhower's friends predict the retired army chief of staff will make another statement.

The general didn't leave much room for doubt about his position in January. He said the "decision to remove myself completely from the political scene is definite and positive."

When he said he "could not accept" a nomination, he did not specify party, it was pointed out.

JURY TRIAL TO BE AMONG CIVIL CASES

Condemnation Proceedings Are Now Scheduled For May

Court action in Salem city council's condemnation proceedings to obtain the new city hall site at the southwest corner of S. Broadway and E. Pershing st. probably will not take place until May.

These properties are owned by Dr. Robert H. McKelvey, 231 S. Broadway, and Mrs. Emma Webber, 201 S. Broadway. The city has an option on a third property owned by Norman Paxson of 221 S. Broadway.

Considerable delay occurred before Salem officials finally resorted to court action on March 16 when Solicitor Henry L. Reese filed the condemnation suit.

State Fire Marshal Ray R. Gill recently gave Mayor R. R. Johnson a "last warning" to comply to his order calling for the vacation of the present, old city hall. Gill's order, originally issued in 1941, branded the century-old building as a fire-trap.

Salem voters approved a $100,000 bond issue for a new city hall at the November, 1946, election.

Federal Injunction Issued Against ITU
(By Associated Press)
INDIANAPOLIS, March 27—Federal Judge Luther M. Swygert today issued a temporary injunction against the AFL International Typographical union, restraining it from violating the Taft-Hartley law.

The injunction will remain in effect until the case against the ITU before the National Labor Relations board is settled.

The court order names the ITU, its president, Woodruff Randolph, and other officers of the union.

They are restrained from authorizing or encouraging "subordinate local unions and members of International Typographical union to engage in any strikes, slowdowns, workouts or other disruptions of any kind to the business operations of employers in the newspaper publishing industry" in maintaining contracts which violate the Taft-Hartley law.

Gerhard Van Arkel, ITU counsel, said in Washington that the union "probably will appeal." He delayed a definite statement on this until the ITU lawyers could read the order and confer about it.

The suit against the printers' union was filed by the general counsel of the NLRB Jan. 16, it was aimed at halting strikes in the newspaper industry.

This test of the Taft-Hartley labor relations law was the subject of two hearings which lasted two weeks.

FOUR MOTORISTS PAY TRAFFIC FINES
Four drivers were arrested for traffic violations Friday and paid fines in district courts, the highway patrol reported.

Ralph J. Mancuso, 38, of 973 E. Fourth st., was fined $10 and costs to Mayor R. R. Johnson for illegal passing.

John W. White, 33, of Wayneburg, Pa., was fined $50 and costs by Municipal Judge Frank Grosshans of East Liverpool for reckless operation.

Richard B. Vogenitz, 36, of Akron, forfeited a $10 bond to Johnson after being arrested for passing over the yellow line.

Alphonse W. Capone, 35, of Seewick, Pa., forfeited a $10 bond to the mayor's court on a similar charge.

Ohio's Liquor Monopoly

Ohio's attorney general, Hugh S. Jenkins, has touched off a dangerous issue by recommending to Governor Herbert that the state either should get out of the liquor business or find ways "to obtain and hold the confidence of the people in their system of liquor control."

This is not an either-or proposition, at least not in the way the attorney general has stated it. The actual proposition is that Ohio either must get rid of politics and corruption in its handling of the liquor problem or any system it tries will be a disappointment.

Politics and corruption gave the pre-prohibition licensing system a black eye and helped to bring prohibition. The Ohio monopoly system, patterned after recommendations of experts paid by the Rockefeller foundation, was an experiment in reform.

It is still relatively untried. The general assembly has let it ride for some 15 years without correcting its shortcomings as they appeared. There is nothing wrong with the system that can't be corrected. But it's still a question whether anything can be done under any system with the weaknesses of human nature that tempt high-pressure politicians and liquor salesmen.

The attorney general seems inclined to believe the Ohio liquor control act can be patched up to make it a little harder for the pressure boys to go into their act and a little easier for the underpaid employees to be competent. Before Ohio lets anyone talk it into the old-fashioned private licensing system it had better do everything in its power to make its public monopoly of the liquor traffic more efficient.

Stalinists Denied Courtesy

U. S. Representative Cox of Georgia has said for the record what most Americans are ready to hear—that the abuse of free speech by homegrown Stalinists has worn out America's patience.

Commenting on a typical party-line blast in the house last Thursday by Representative Marcantonio, who has followed the Moscow line closely during his many terms in congress, Cox said for the record:

"How long, I wonder, must members of this body sit here and hear assaulted from day to day the government we love and by people who would rip from the wall that symbol of liberty that hangs above the speaker's rostrum?"

Speaker Martin, when Marcantonio demanded that Cox's remark be stricken from the record, ordered it to be left in. For the first time Marcantonio was given official notice that he no longer deserved the courtesy of the congress of the United States.

He was not—mark this well—deprived of his right to speak. He was denied, as apologists for Stalinism everywhere should be denied, right to present himself as an American citizen speaking in good faith. His rights and the rights of all others like him have reverted to the coldly legalistic basis of the constitution. They have abused and worn out the moral right to be listened to on a basis of good faith. They are not presenting honest differences of opinion but the upside-down reasoning and malicious falsehoods that are the trademarks of Stalinist doctrine. Their bad faith has been shown to be so gross and palpable by the bad faith of the regime they defend that they have no further claim on a respectful hearing in the country they are plotting to destroy.

Person-to-Person Help

Substitutes for the Marshall plan are little more than talking points at this late date, but one offered by Representative Gwin of New York helps to show by contrast what could be the downfall of the kind of aid the United States will give under a government program of assistance.

The Gwin substitute is based on its author's conviction that government assistance will prove to be a means of subsidizing European state socialism with American taxpayers' money. Therefore, he reasons, if the purpose is to save freedom in Europe, the assistance should be from free men to free men. He would set up a nonprofit corporation to relieve hunger; the cost to be shared by individuals and government. Industrial assistance would come from free American enterprise, assisted by suspension of income taxes on profits from foreign investments and salaries earned abroad by Americans helping to put European business back on its feet by sharing their personal skill and experience.

For military assistance, the Gwin proposal would give the chief executive of the United States a billion dollars to allocate where it was needed. The author points out there would be no new government bureaucracy created by his proposal. It would merely open the door to private citizens willing to help Europeans help themselves.

"For the first time in our history," says Representative Gwin, "Americans would be made free to give their capital and invention and productive and cooperative capacity to the industrialization of other countries as they have to America."

Move On Tidal Lands

By a 2 to 1 vote, a senate judiciary subcommittee favors yielding to coastal states control over their tidal lands. This action is in opposition to the recent supreme court ruling holding that such lands belong to the federal government.

These marginal sea lands are estimated to hold 100 million barrels of oil more than five times the known inland resources. The federal government is seeking control over them, holding that such a resource constitutes a national resource. It is willing to submit the lands to the states on a lease basis, with the states receiving most of the royalties on oil withdrawn.

Underlying oil pools are among America's last great untapped natural resources conservatively but that in the control of the states they might be pumped unprofitably.

For Sunday, March 28

Sunday's horoscope holds testimony of a disheartening and disagreeable state of affairs, in which perhaps the family circle or other close or intimate affiliations may be inharmonious and unpleasant as well as unprofitable.

Harsh words, criticism, or a show of both stubborn and vindictive conduct, born of jealousy or enmity, might demolish all peace and ruin cherished hopes and wishes. For health and harmony maintain composure and equanimity. Be agreeable.

For the Birthday

Those whose birthday it is may have a difficult and doubtful year in which affairs may not move along in either progressive or pleasant grooves.

The spirits may be depressed and the energies stagnant, begot of a morose, stubborn, vindictive or jealous disposition. The domestic circle may be the scene of clash and inharmonious or other intimate relations may react to a low state of vitality or other sad and sordid inhibitions.

A vacation or diversion "far from the madding crowd" might prove good medicine.

A child born on this day may be handicapped by a low state of mind and spirit, inclining it to vengeful, jealous and anti-social behaviorism. It could profit by early training, discipline and precept, with an optimistic outlook on life.

For Monday, March 29

Monday's astrological forecast is for a decided turn in the tide of affairs giving definite stimulus to the energies, ambitions and aspirations, to the point of attainment of new goals, in which position, finance, labor and intelligent quest of high objectives should be richly rewarded.

Such talent, energy and ambitious plans and purposes should attain full and hearty support of influential persons or institutions. Intelligence, merit and good work should be focused upon advanced goals, promotion and enhanced prestige.

For the Birthday

Those whose birthday it is should marshal their most ambitious faculties, forces, plans and ambitions on the determination to attain their cherished ambitions, as reward of merit and the warm and hearty endorsement of those in influential positions who may be counted upon for the attainment of personal prestige and popularity.

Important deals, finances, promotion should flourish and bring about much gratification, honors and intimate joy in all contacts and aspirations. Work for exceptional returns.

A child born on this day should be heartily endowed with energies, forces, faculties and ambitions for a successful career, with honors, prestige and influence.

GUARDING YOUR HEALTH

An Easily-Diagnosed Cancer

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.
Cancer of the lower bowels is one of the simplest of all cancers to diagnose. Where it is suspected, the physician can tell with surety, even in the very early, curable stages, whether it is present or not—and that by a fairly simple examination.

Unfortunately, however, most victims of this type of cancer do not give their doctors a chance to help them. They ignore their symptoms as long as they can be ignored and present themselves for examination only after the cancer is far advanced.

Sad Fact
This sad fact account for an even sadder one—that one-fifth of our annual cancer deaths are due to cancer of the lower bowel. This condition is twice as frequent in men as in women. Most of the patients are between fifty and seventy years of age. However, from one to five of every hundred of those affected are below the age of thirty.

There are certain disorders which evidently contribute to the development of such bowel cancers. These are tumor growths known as polyps and adenomas. The occurrence of such polyps is quite common. Inflammation of the bowel, piles, and cramping around the opening of the bowel are not particularly important as contributing causes to the development of cancer.

Certain Symptoms
The symptoms which suggest the possibility of cancer of the bowel are bleeding from the rectum, changes in bowel habits, such as the occurrence of constipation in a person who formerly did not have such a condition, and the development of rectal pain.

When any of these symptoms is present, an immediate examination by the physician should be made. This examination should include the use of the proctoscope. This is an instrument made up of a tube and a light, which can be passed directly into the bowel. In this way it is possible for the physician to examine directly the lining membrane of the bowel to determine whether or not a growth is present. Practically all cancers of the lower bowel can be seen with the proctoscope.

Early Diagnosis
Early diagnosis of cancer, or the discovery of polyps which can be removed before they become cancerous, becomes all important if deaths from rectal cancers are to be reduced.

The blood in rectal cancer is usually bright red and either streaks the bowel movement or is mixed with it. Large hemorrhages do not occur, except in rare instances. Unfortunately, pain is a late sign and, by the time it develops, the growth may have become quite large.

X-ray examination is, as a rule, not of any great help in the diagnosis of early cases of rectal cancer.

Of course, when a growth is discovered, it should be promptly removed by surgical operation.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS
Q. R. R.: What causes a person to lose control of his kidneys?

A. Answer: There is no such thing as loss of control of the kidneys. It is loss of bladder control which leads to difficulty. This, in turn, usually results from some disturbance of the nervous system. However, it may also be due to malposition of the bladder.

A thorough study by a physician is needed to find the cause before treatment can be advised.

Letters to Dr. Bundesen should be addressed in care of 235 E. 45th St., New York City.

In Egypt, inhabitants of many villages sleep in cup-like structures during the summer months to escape scorpions and snakes, which abound.

AS LONG AS I LIVE

By Ione Sandberg Shriber © BY IONE SANDBERG SHRIBER; DISTRIBUTED BY NEA SERVICE, INC.

After awhile when she could stop crying she looked at him and said, "Was it—that pill Laurie took—was it poison, Rush?"

He was silent for a long time and then he said, "So you did remember. The doctor thought you might not. You were so sick afterwards. Yes, Ann, it was poison."

They were both very quiet and when Rush said as though she'd asked the question, "It worked fast, Ann. She didn't suffer."

It was very still in the room. Ann sighed. And Rush said then, "It was better that way, Ann. She was completely unbalanced. She'd have had to be put in an institution."

"I know." "Enos and I—Ann, you've got to believe that we tried to figure every angle there was. Believe me, Ann, there simply wasn't a better way."

"I do believe you, Rush." She was silent a minute. "And it was Laurie all the time?"

He nodded. "The bridge? The wax? I didn't imagine any of it?" "No, darling," his hands tightened on her arms. "You didn't imagine any of it."

She had to blow her nose, clear her throat.

"When did you know?" "Not for too dogged long," he said, his voice tight. "I didn't get suspicious until after I found that the clock was locked. And when I told Enos about it he said he'd been uneasy ever since Tommy came to his office. It was Enos who started me on Laurie's trail."

"Why did Enos—what made him think of Laurie?" "Well, he knew her talent for getting whatever she wanted. He figured that if she'd really wanted to marry Tommy she'd have managed it capably. It seems that Tommy hated living with us the way he did here, he begged Laurie to marry him but she kept him dangling." Rush's face was dark.

"He told her finally that he didn't believe the terms of the will; that was when she sent him to Enos. Told him to plead with Enos to try and break the will." He looked at Ann. "Laurie knew very well Enos couldn't break the will but she also knew that if the clock felt on you and it came out that Tommy had been to see Enos that a lot of suspicion would fall on Tommy. It was fiendish."

"She didn't—she wasn't in love with Tommy at all?" "I guess not," Rush's voice was low.

Ann could remember so clearly hearing Enos. "Have you ever visualized the sort of man Laurie would fall in love with? Older, distinguished, with money of his own."

A perfect description of Rush but she hadn't been able to see the woods for the trees. And Laurie's penchant for getting what she wanted—had Enos known then? Had he been trying to tell her? Her arms tightened about Rush's neck. God bless Rush, she thought. We don't have to say it out loud. He knows it and I know it and he knows I know it and I know he knows it but we don't ever have to say it. God bless Rush.

Rush knew she wanted the whole story and so he continued in a minute. "She worked fast on the bridge. She used an acid on the ropes. Before I had the bridge destroyed I saved a part of the ropes. I was curious about them and I felt dogged bad about Luke. So I sent them away for analysis. The report came back only yesterday."

"And then the wax..." "Yes. You see, the devilish part of it, Ann, was her complete recklessness. It didn't matter to her how many lives she put in danger if—"

"I know, darling." "And then the gas. That came the closest to working. If it hadn't been for Rinda—"

"Rinda! I'd forgotten all about her. Did anyone ever explain to her?" And Rush said, "She's downstairs now. She's been here for a week. You can see her later."

"Rinda saw Tommy that night."

Ann said remembering. "The night of the gas."

"I know. He'd been downstairs for whisky. He was pretty miserable. Laurie wouldn't marry him and she wouldn't let him go."

Ann said, a hint of exasperation in her voice. "Why did you try to stop me when I wanted to talk to Sam Blanding? After all—"

"I guess because it was so terribly new to me. I'd only begun to realize what was happening the night before—that's why I sent for Enos. I had to talk to someone. Until you started talking I didn't know a thing about the wax on your shoes—by the way, that left the house in the rubbish. The rubbish was collected the day after the wax was used. That was one thing Sam could check and he did; found an almost new can of floor wax at the dump. But, you see, even that wasn't proof of anything. Finding the wax at the dump didn't mean it had come from Tophill—there weren't any fingerprints on it. You nearly bowled me over with that tale."

"Well, but why did you let me think I was—"

His arms tightened again. He kissed her hair.

"Enos and I talked it over. We didn't have any proof at all, Ann; that was the sickening part of the whole thing. We thought it was Laurie but we couldn't prove it. It seemed better for you to be frightened—to let her think we didn't believe you. Ann, that's what I meant when I said I had a lot to say. I thought I'd go crazy myself thinking of the strain you were under—watching you day by day getting paler and more uncertain of yourself—not being able to comfort you at all!"

This is one of a series of advertisements about industrial teamwork in action.

What do we have that other countries lack?

The United States occupies only 6 per cent of the world's land area

The 140,000,000 people who live here represent only 7 per cent of the world's population

BUT

We own 85 out of every 100 automobiles in the world

We own 60 out of every 100 life insurance policies in the world

We own 48 out of every 100 radio sets in the world

And in our homes we have 92 out of every 100 labor-saving electric appliances

When you hear people talking about the glories of Communism or Socialism—or saying that we ought to have more government control of business—it's a pretty good idea to sit back and think how much better off we are than any other people in the history of the world.

... AND THE AMERICAN WAY IS GETTING BETTER ALL THE TIME

Millions of men and women in every country in Europe and Asia would give anything for the right to live and work in the United States. These people have lived under "workers' governments," under Socialism and Communism, under governments where property and money have been confiscated and given to the government. The government is supposed to use the property for the benefit of the individual workers, but these workers have found that they don't get very much—in merchandise, or money, and certainly not very much freedom.

THEORIES ARE A POOR SUBSTITUTE FOR PERFORMANCE

If Communism and Socialism are so wonderful, why do other countries always look to America when they want something? The Communist or Socialist worker skimps along under government control of industry. An automobile is beyond his wildest dreams. But in the United States—a country where people are free to develop their own individual abilities—we have been able to produce bountifully for ourselves and still have enough to share with the rest of the world.

Government control fails because it puts the emphasis on the distribution of what goods there are, rather than on effort to increase the amount of goods produced—and because it limits the freedom of the individual to risk his money and ability in an effort to produce something better.

Theirs is a sort of "equal misery for all" theory. We believe the more we produce the more there is for all to share.

We Americans have been able to get more money for our work—and more goods for our money—than any other people in the history of the world. We can continue to get still more—if we're smart enough to continue developing voluntary teamwork between the people who can buy tools of production and the people with the skills to use the tools.

In America the customer is boss. Customers, not government officials, decide how many jobs there'll be at Mullins.

Gov. Dewey To Appear In Wisconsin, Nebraska

ALBANY, N. Y., March 27—Gov. Thomas E. Dewey decided today to make a "gambling" personal invasion of Wisconsin and Nebraska to seek delegate support of his candidacy for the Republican presidential nomination.

Dewey announced he would deliver two major speeches in Wisconsin next Thursday and Friday and two in Nebraska the following week.

He indicated he would continue attacking President Truman for what he termed the national administration's "vacillating and bungling approach to American foreign policy."

More Demands For Export Halt Heard

(By Associated Press)
WASHINGTON, March 27—An administration clamp-down on exports of war goods to Russia failed today to stifle demands in congress for extra padlocks.
Rep. Mundt (R-SD) said he intends to go right ahead with an amendment to the $6,205,000,000 house foreign aid bill which would give the director of the European Recovery program veto power over "war potential" exports.

And Chairman Ruliffe (R-Okla.) said his house expenditures subcommittee is going to dig deeper into the disposal of world war II surplus supplies to the Soviets.
Committee investigators, he told a reporter, are going to New York to check goods being loaded onto Russia-bound ships.

And Chairman Shafer (R-Mich.) of a house armed service subcommittee said Commerce department officials will be quizzed next week on shipments to the U. S. S. R.

For months congressional committees have been digging up information about oil and ships—and in the last few days, airplane engines—Russia has been getting from this country.

President Truman stepped into the export dispute yesterday. He issued a proclamation tightening controls, particularly on exports of plane engines and radar equipment.

Following that move—
1. Secretary of Commerce Harrison told a news conference Russia and her satellites are getting no exports except those the Army and Navy approved.

2. The War Assets Administration said it is delaying for at least 30 days taking Finland's high bid of $1,666,900 for 46 unused steam locomotives. Finland and Russia are talking over a military treaty. WAA didn't mention that, or any other reason for its action.

RENEW EFFORTS TO END MEAT TIE-UP

Mediation Service Dickers With Companies While Awaiting Report

(By International News Service)
CHICAGO, March 27—The U. S. Mediation and Conciliation service renewed its efforts today to settle the nationwide meat packing strike now in its 12th day.

James J. Spilane, mediation regional director, said that representatives of the "Big Four" packers and the striking CIO United Packing house workers have been invited to a meeting in Chicago next Tuesday or Wednesday in an effort to settle the wage dispute.

The new move toward reopening negotiations came as President Truman's board of inquiry investigating the strike was given another week in which to study the vast amount of data in the strike.

On another strike front, the Omaha livestock exchange appealed to President Truman to intervene in the strike. The appeal was made in a telegram from George H. Fischer, president of the exchange.

Fischer requested government intervention on the grounds that the reduction in slaughter and processing of livestock because of the strike "is detrimental to the nation's welfare."

More than 100,000 CIO workers walked off the job a week ago last Tuesday after negotiations for a 29-cent-an-hour wage increase broke down. The union agreed to accept a 9-cent raise if the remaining 20 cents were submitted to arbitration, but the packers rejected this proposal.

The granting of an additional week for further study of the strike gave the fact-finding board until April 8 to file its report to Truman.

The main target of the strike is the "big four" packers, Swift, Armour, Cudahy and Wilson.

Despite the 12-day strike, fresh meat was reported available in ample supply throughout the nation. At wholesale markets, week end trading was extremely slow although there was considerable demand for lamb in New York. Steady to lower prices prevailed on other meat. Prices for pork lard declined.

Livestock prices rose generally as farmers shipped fewer meat animals to market. Prices for hogs and cattle rose from 25 to 50 cents at Chicago.

HAVE ROW OVER GOP PHONE LINE IN OHIO CAPITAL

(By Associated Press)
COLUMBUS, March 27—The Ohio Bell Telephone Co. today found itself in the middle of a political battle involving telephones, switchboards and extensions.

State Auditor Joseph T. Ferguson, only elected Democrat in the statehouse, told Ohio Bell yesterday that he wouldn't pay the state's phone bill until the Republican state headquarters is cut off the state switchboard.

Ferguson said: "I know they pay their own bill. I still don't like it."

The peppery little auditor carried the battle a bit farther. He said he wanted to know if GOP headquarters used the state's leased long distance trunk line to Cleveland.

Johnson ripped out a hot denial. That's where the telephone company got into the act. Homer Smart, Ohio Bell's commercial manager, said Johnson was right. Company records showed no calls from headquarters to Cleveland over that line.

Then Smart explained the state switchboard setup. The board is run by Ohio Bell, not the state. It is manned by Ohio Bell girls, not state employees. It is owned by Ohio Bell, not the state.

GOP state headquarters pays $2.50 a month, figured on the half mile distance between the switch board on the 10th floor of the state office building and Republican headquarters at 17 North High street.

Regular charge for a business telephone in the state capital is $16.50 monthly.

A. A. Hoppingarner, public relations director for the Republicans, said the extension—750 on main 1265—was put in February, 1947, "to relieve the trunk load at headquarters here."

H. D. Defenbacher, state finance director, commented that "it looks all right to me." Defenbacher is a Republican who served under Democratic Gov. Frank J. Lausche as well as Thomas J. Herbert.
